BRILLIANT ORATION DELIVERED BY HON. SAMUEL A. ETTELSON AT THE WENDELL PHILLIPS HIGH SCHOOL LAST FRIDAY EVENING IN HONOR OF THE HOME COMING OF HON. MARTIN B. MADDEN, AND THE PRESENTATION OF A BEAUTIFUL SILVER LOVING CUP TO THE CONGRESSMAN.

We gather here this evening to perform an act of appreciation, an act of friendship, an act of gratitude. We are paying homage to one who richly deserves tribute.

It is fitting that this ceremony should be under the auspices of the Appomattox Club. When we hear the hallowed name of Appomattox, we immediately see two men who led great hosts in mighty battle. We see the smoke clear away, cannons mute, and the chains fall from the limbs of the enslaved and oppressed. We hear the principle proclaimed that "A house divided against itself cannot stand." We see a nation reborn. Appomattox means a new nation, a new race, a new freedom. An organization bearing that name has a responsibility and you have borne it honorably and well.

It is fitting that we are met this evening in this beautiful school named after a great American, Wendell Phillips, a fearless champion of human rights who aroused public opinion so deeply that Appomattox was made possible. The man we honor tonight has learned to live and love the lessons of Appomattox. Like Wendell Phillips, endowed with a great mind and heart, his soul is stirred with a love of humanity and a high resolve to do and die, if need be, for strict equality and justice for all alike.

What a satisfaction it must be to our honored guest as he sits here and reviews in his mind the life he has spent so well. He sees once again the days of his struggling boyhood. In his humble surroundings he works and studies and plans and dreams. Slowly his dreams begin to come true. Step by step he marches along the rocky road of progress to find himself ultimately entrusted with positions of financial prominence and power. Believing that politics is the business of serving the people, the highest vocation known to man, he takes his place in the arena of public life. For eighteen years he has served this great congressional district in the Congress of the United States. He now holds the position of Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, the most important committee in the national House of Representatives, a committee whose work is stupendous in its far-reaching importance to our people. As chairman of that committee his place is one of prestige and influence, second only to that of the President of the United States. As chairman of that committee he has fought for and achieved a much needed reduction in taxes. He is continuing that fight with all his strength. Upon the floor of the House and in committee he has believed and valiantly and eloquently advocated with Daniel O'Connell that "Nothing is politically right which is morally wrong."

He has fought against reaction, fearlessly exposing the plunderers and oppressors of the people and protecting the poor and the unfortunate. Now he is back with us this evening in the company of his constituents and his friends. To have the admiration and love of friends innumerable, to have the crowning glory of a wonderful family, a charming wife, loving children and grandchildren, these after all are the most precious things in this life.

Honored guest, we applaud you tonight for your statesmanship. You have been a faithful law maker and guide. Time and again your fine oratory has been heard in the interest of the nation's righteous cause. We greet you tonight as a leader of men who has served his party best by serving his country best. We greet you as a friend and neighbor. You are younger today in heart and mind and spirit than ever before. Ahead of you are many, many years of increasing usefulness and distinction. This token of esteem which we present to you will, we hope, be a constant reminder of our affection and of our appreciation of long and valued service to this district, to this state, and to our beloved country. We trust that the memory of this occasion will ever bloom afresh to sustain in you the courage, the vision, the character which have placed among the bright names in the galaxy of America's great leaders the name and fame of the Honorable Martin B. Madden.

RICHARD E. MOORE, PROMINENT CHICAGOAN, STRICKEN IN EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.

By Overton Starkey

Richard E. Moore, one of Chicago's most prominent figures, was stricken in East St. Louis last week while attending the Grand session of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Illinois at the Masonic Grand Lodge of Illinois and Jurisdiction, and died on Oct. 17th, at 9:45 p.m. He was a very active member of Bethel A. M. E. Church and devoted much of his time to ecclesiastical reform. He is also one of the widest known Masons of the state, having belonged to most of the branches of that fraternity as follows: Past Master of Hiram Lodge, No. 14 F. & A. M.; member St. Marks Chapter, No. 1 R. A. M.; Past Eminent Commander of St. George Commandery No. 4, Knights Templar; Past Patron of Talma Chapter No. 2, O. E. S.; Past Joshua of Court No. —, H. of J.; member Arabic Temple No. 44, A. E. A. O. N. M. S.; member Union Guild No. 4, Heroines of the Templars Crusades; member Arabic Court No. 21, Daughters of Isis, Chicago Assembly No. 4, Order of the Golden Circle; Western Consistory No. 28, A. A. S. R. Masons; Past Grand Patron of Eureka Grand Chapter, O. E. S. of Ill.; Past Grand Johna of —, Grand Court, H. of J. of Illinois; Past Right Worshipful Grand Secretary of the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Illinois; and Jurisdiction; Past Right Eminent Grand Commander of Prince Hall Grand Commandery of Illinois; Iowa Jurisdiction of Knights Templar; Past Deputy Imperial Potentate of the A. E. A. O. N. M. S.; Active member of the Supreme Council No. 330, A. A. S. R. 33rd degree Masons; Past Pursant Lieutenant Commander, United Supreme Council of the Northern Masonic Jurisdiction of U. S. A. A. S. R. M.; Past Illustrious Deputy of the Valley of Ill., A. A. S. R. M.

From the above it can readily be understood that Mr. Moore has been very active in every branch with which he was connected, and true to the obligation of Brother Masons in every branch, and also true to the Sisterly love and devotion of the Sisters of the Eastern Star. A midnight Masonic funeral was arranged on Saturday night, Oct. 21, at Bethel A. M. E. Church, 30th and Dearborn streets, under the direction of J. D. Reynolds, Commander in Chief of Western Consistory No. 28. As early as 9:30 o'clock the church was crowded, and eyes were widely opened and necks were craned in the eager expectation of the arrival of the body. At 10:30 the body arrived, and as the many beautiful floral designs were carried into the church, the Daughters of Isis, who were to be the first to perform their ceremonies, began to take their places so as to be ready when called upon. As the ceremonies began, silence fell upon the threshold. The sisters of Isis crept silently about enveloping the body and each lady going through her part with all the correctness, dignity and solemnity attributed to the order with which they are connected. After performing their respective duties with perfection, and as the song, "We Shall Meet Him Face to Face" rang out from a clear, keen voice, the Daughters of Isis quietly took their seats.

And Darkness Was Upon the Face of the Deep

The Consistory was next; all the lights were extinguished and the church was in total darkness except for the candles carried in the hands of each brother as they also marched silently around the body. Everything was quiet as everyone seemed to be anxiously awaiting the clear and eloquent words soon spoken by Commander in Chief J. D. Reynolds, after which each brother took up his part in rotation causing the ceremonies to be beautifully conducted, and at 12 o'clock the congregation was on its way home to prepare for the general services to be held Sunday at 2 P. M.

Sunday Services at Bethel

Mr. Moore, for years a member and efficient worker of Bethel A. M. E. Church, was loved and honored by all those he became affiliated with, and his sudden death was a great shock to his many, many friends, and this fact was doubly verified by the large attendance at the funeral services Sunday afternoon. The church was overcrowded and there was a like attendance on the outside. Dr. Tanner, pastor of Bethel, spoke in very solemn tones, touching upon the merits of the deceased, eulogizing his profound devotion to the dictates of the Supreme Grand Master of the Universe, and also vindicating his character as a man who has pondered well his words and actions here on earth and perfected himself so that when crossing the cold, chilly stream of death, and his body shall be resting in the narrow confines of the grave, his soul shall be enjoying the blessings which God has prepared for all the faithful when the foundation of the earth was laid. He also deliberated in eloquence of the course one should pursue in this wild and chaotic world in order to attain that Supreme Kingdom in the end. His sermon was deep and touching and was delivered in eloquence and with the solemnity and dignity attributed to the divine office he holds. True, too, to their oaths and obligations, were the brethren of the many branches of the Masonic Fraternity to which Brother Moore belonged, who in sad commemoration assembled to pay their last respects to their beloved brother, always remembering these words: "Not he alone who walks the busy thoroughfare of life with fearless eye and never faltering step is noble; but he who, struggling with sin's passion seated in his inner being deep, conquers the raging fires and truly though with faltering step pursues his way; he, I say, is worthy of a noble praise, a knighthood of the royal kind. I wish you then God speed."
